

CRAIGHALL RIESLING 2009

The colour of this wine is that of straw with obvious green tints. First and foremost are the floral aromatics followed by lemongrass and grapefruit with a chalk rather than talc expression of minerality. Long penetrating flavours combine lemon grass, yellow grapefruit and white peach with an extended lemon sorbet aftertaste, a notable clarity of expression and silky mouthfeel. Like Chardonnay, longevity expectations are a function of the vintage. Typically this wine will develop significantly over the next 4–7 years by which time it will start to be evident for how many years beyond this it will be interesting to cellar it for.
